FISCAL YEAR 2020
ANNUAL REPORT

Improving health by providing basic needs across the lifespan

TheDiaperBank.org
OUR MISSION

1. To ensure that families living in poverty have an adequate supply of diapers, period supplies, and incontinence products;

2. To raise community awareness that “basic human needs” include diapers, period supplies, and incontinence products and that these needs are not being met for individuals and families living in poverty;

3. To advocate for policy reform so that diapers, period supplies and incontinence products are included in the definition of and provision for the “basic human needs” of families.

To inquire about joining our Board of Directors, email board@thediaperbank.org.
Dear Friends,

The past year was unlike any other. As the region, state and world grapple with an unprecedented pandemic, demand for our services has reached levels we’ve never seen - and the need is far from over.

In the last few months of our 2020 fiscal year alone, we distributed nearly 1 million diapers as COVID-19 wreaked havoc on low-income families and their finances. Need is at an all-time high, and our work is critical.

In these uncertain times, we aren’t only holding true to our mission and getting more diapers to more infants and toddlers than ever before; we’re also expanding our impact and footprint. We’re working to increase people’s access to period products and youth and seniors’ access to incontinence supplies. No one should have to worry about affording basic health needs throughout their lifespan. We also continue to advocate for diapers for infants and toddlers to have coverage through Medicaid. Though we accomplished so much in the past year, there is much more on our horizon.

Thank you for continuing to support our mission.

VOLUNTEER SPOTLIGHT: QUINNIPIAK UNIVERSITY

When Dorothy Watters learned about diaper need in one of her Quinnipiac University classes, she was not only surprised but spurred to action. Watters (class of 2021) helped organize a virtual diaper drive, where donors could contribute online — proving it’s possible to make a difference even as the COVID-19 pandemic keeps many people socially distanced and stuck at home.

And what a difference they made: the group raised $5,607! With that money, The Diaper Bank can leverage our unique buying power and strategic network of more than 50 community-based distribution partners to get diapers to children and families who need them.

“It felt like there had to be something we could do,” Watters says, adding the diaper drive “was a great way to be able to get involved and do some good, when it felt like there wasn’t any good you could do.”

Students, staff and members of the Quinnipiac community were eager to contribute because it gave them a way to make a meaningful impact and have a positive effect on families in Greater New Haven and beyond.

“We all have a responsibility, not just to the campus we joined for four years, but to the community that welcomes us for four years,” says Watters. “It’s been a very awesome experience. We are just so happy to be able to support such an amazing organization.”

Through our Rise program, we are expanding our capacity for distributing senior incontinence supplies. We are creating and managing strategic partnerships and pipelines, and identifying the most efficient ways to get these supplies to low-income seniors.

Incontinence is a common condition among seniors, but many don’t seek treatment for it, partly out of embarrassment. Incontinence supplies can provide a simple and effective solution to the problem, but they can be costly - particularly for seniors living on a fixed income. The price tag can be a severe barrier for low-income individuals.
With our Beam program, the Connecticut Chapter of the Alliance for Period Supplies, we are raising awareness that low-income individuals miss out on aspects of daily life because they can’t afford period supplies. In addition to distributing products through our network of community partners, we advocate for legislative changes that would make period supplies more accessible and support the nationwide development of period supply initiatives.

The cost of period supplies is a barrier for many low-income individuals. Without pads or tampons, they may be forced to miss work or school, making it more difficult to break the cycle of poverty.

The Shine program supports families who are raising youths between the ages of 3 and 20 who need incontinence supplies due to medical conditions. We distribute these products through our network of community partners, advocate for increased support to cover or supplement the cost associated with them, and support the statewide development and expansion of supply chains.

In Connecticut, coverage for incontinence products is limited, and can cost families between $180 and $215 a month. Many parents raising youths with this type of medical need have to reduce their work hours, or stop working altogether, to care for them, which can put these items even further out of financial reach.
